1. Introduction

According to the Oxford Dictionary, a disability could be described as an impairment which can be Intellectual, limitations, cognitive, improvement, sensory, exercise or the combination of all of these. The Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (CRPD) -2006, further emphasizes that “Persons with disabilities include those who have long term physical, mental, intellectual or sensory impairments which in interaction with various barriers may hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others.” Both the articulation reflects a shift from a medical model to social model of disability. Many disabilities vary in degree and type of limitation; in this way, facilities should likewise differ and ought to be customized to the requirements of the person.
